BUTCHERED BY A MANIAC?

STARTLING THEORY AS TO THE HEADLESS BODY MYSTERY.

Dr. Frank Perguson Hints at Cauntballem and Suggests That the Slayer of Suste Martin May Have Committed This Latest Atrectty-Remarkable Points of Similarity About the Two Crimes - Police Evidently Impressed -An Identification That May Pan Out.

The mystery of the headless and legless trunk of a human body found in two pieces, one on Saturday and one on Sunday, in widely sepa-rated parts of the city, is no nearer solution than it was when the two pieces were fitted to gether at the Morgue on Sunday. The clue which it was hoped the ollcloth wrapping about the body would furnish has proved worthless, purchasers of that cloth. The broken finger nail on the index finger of the left hand has proved almost as useless as a clue. It has merely served to render the case more involved, for by it no less than twenty persons have identified the body as that of some person whose body it was not and it has taken time to run down and disprove each identification. A more hopeless case the police have never had. Without the possibility of an identification there loss not seem to be any likelihood of ever un ravelling the mystery of the murder.

SUSIE MARTIN'S MURDER RECALLED. But somewhere in this city, for it is almost certain that the murder was committed in this city, there is a room that is stained with blood. There are blood-stained garments and blood stained weapons and probably blood-stained walls. In that room there is indelibly fixed evidence of the murder and of the cutting up of the body. It is evidence that cannot be destroyed except by fire. Herein lies the slim possibility that the mystery may be solved. It is with some vague idea of finding this room, it was said last night, that the police were at work. They were started on this track by Dr. Frank Fergu son, the pathologist of the New York Hospital. From the first THE SUN has stated that the murder was very similar to that of Susie Mar tin, the twelve-year-old girl who was killed in March, 1894, in the cellar of a house in Thirty-ninth street, near Eleventh avenue. The similarity was in the cutting up of the bodies scalding. Susie Martin's body was scalded. It was dismembered, as was this body and the head was never found. Some time after the murder, in the cellar of a house near the one in which she was killed bones were found. These bones were given to Dr. Ferguson, and he made a series of examinations. He found that they were certainly parts of the bones of the arms of the murdered child. The flesh on them had been cooked and had been chipped off. The doctor became greatly interested in the case He made several examinations of the body. He made careful measurements. He found that the saw used in cutting up the child's body was one millimetre thick. Susic Martin's murderer was never found. The doctor's conclusion, from his sane man, probably a butcher, and a German. The child had been in the habit of visiting a near-by slaughter house and butcher shops also. DR. FERGUSON'S STARTLING THEORY.

Dr. Ferguson's attention was attracted in the present case by the description in the papers of the way in which the body had been cut up. It recalled the Martin case to his mind. He dismissed its consideration at first, but yesterday he made up his mind to at least go to the Morgue an , see this body, and he sent word to that ef feet to Coroner Tuthill and Deputy Coroner O'Hanlon. He recalled to them the similarity of this to the Martin case, Dr. O'Hanlor agreed to meet him at 4 o'clock at the Morgue. The Deputy Coroner first called at the office of Chief of Police Conlin, but that official was too busy to receive him. At the Morgue the body was brought from the big box and was taken to the dissecting room, where there were three other physicians and Detective Price of the Central Office, who had been on duty at the Morgue all day.

POLICE MOVED TO RENEWED ACTIVITY.

Dr. Ferguson's examination lasted about half an hour. He made exact measurements of every part. He found on one of the ribs the mark of the saw that had been used in cutting the body in two pieces. The saw had gone through one rib and had just entered the rib below it. It had left a cut a fraction of an inch deep. This cut was made by a saw one millimetre thick, the exact thickness of the saw that was used in cutting the body of Susie Martin.

When the examination was completed the doctors left the Morgue and Detective Price hurried to a telephone and sent to the Central Office for men to help him. He refused to tell what the examination had disclosed. Dr. Fermee for men to help him. He refused to fell what the examination had disclosed. Dr. Ferguson said that his examination showed that the head had been cut off when the body was lying on the back. The murderer had becun his rutting in front and had carried the knife around, and had then used the saw. The middle cut had been made when the dody was facedown. The murderer had stood up on the right-hand side. He had stood or knelt on the left side of the body when he cut off the left leg, and had gone around to the right side to cut off the other one. Dr. Ferguson remarked to the other doctor that if the arms of the man had been cut off as Susie Martin's arms had been there would be no doubt in his mind at all.

He was asked then about the similarity of this to the Susie Martin case, and he shut up. All he would say after that was: "I made a report in that case to the District Attorney. It is on file. Go and look at that."

HORRIBLE SUGGESTION OF CANNIBALISM.

HORRIBLE SUGGESTION OF CANNIBALISM.

HORRIBLE SUGGESTION OF CANNIBALISM.

He repeated that in reply to all questions, and he drove away with Dr. O'Hanlon. It didn't come out until some time afterward that Dr. Ferguson's examination had developed the fact that the body of the murdered man had been cut in two in almost precisely the same spot that time was a body had been cut, that the cutting was done in precisely the same way and with the same kind of instrument; that he had concluded that the saw used was a butcher's saw, and that the object of the murliation was the horrible one of cannibalism.

His conclusion was that the nurderer was the same person who had murdered Susle Martin; that he was a butcher, a foreigner, and insane; that a times the man's insanity took the form of an irresistible desire to kill and torture and mutilate human fiesh. At the conclusion of his examination it was learned that he had expressed the opinion to the police that the murder was very likely committed within a comparatively short distance of the spot where the lower half of the murdered man's body was found, and he advised them that a wise thing to do would be to prosecute a rigid search of every cellar and every out of the way house in that locality. He thought it might develop some evidence that would at least show where the murder was committed.

least show where the murder was committed.

LOGICAL SEQUENCES OF FERGUSON'S THEORY.

If the murder was committed by a butcher or a butcher's helper in the neighborhood of the place where the body was found, it should not be a difficult thing for the police to find the spot. They can at least learn to-day whether there are any butchers within a radius of a couple of miles who two years ago, when Susie Martin was killed, had places any where near Heil's Kitchen; and they should be able to learn whether any of the helpers of the butchers in that neighborhood lived or worked in the neighborhood of Heil's Kitchen in March two years ago. The police at the Central Office last night would not give out any information at all about Dr. Ferguson's theory or what they were doing toward working it out. They did not deny that their men were at work around fligh Bridge.

The police picked up two men yesterday. The first was a man who came to the Morgne just before noon and asked to see the body. He said his name was George Anderson, and that he thought he might be able to identify the paper in which he understood it had been wrapped. He came alone, and he said jokingly to the reporters that he was going to leave the country on Saturday and thought that before he went he would like to capture the $1,000 prize offered by one of the yellow journals. He was admitted to the Morgne and the paper was shown to him. He said it was just like the paper he was looking for, and then he told a story about having been to Ryc, N. Y. last Saturday.

MYSTERIOUS MEN AND A BUNDLE.

MYSTERIOUS MEN AND A BUNDLE. MYSTERIOUS MEN AND A BUNDLE.

He started down from Hye on the Si56 o'clock train, he said, on the New York and Putnam Railroad on Saturday night. At Mount Vernon two men boarded the train. One of them sat a little distance off and the other sat very near to him. He noticed that the man who sat some distance off had a big bundle. It was about two feet square, wrapped in manila paper and tied with a cord which he said was exactly like the cord shown to him at the Morgue. The man was trying to get the bundle under the seat, and it was so big it wouldn't go.

The man who sat by him, Anderson said, when he noticed that he was looking at the other man and the bundle, engaged him in conversation about the weather and a good many other topics. He kept talking to him until the train reached Highbridge. This man wore a light Fedora hat and talked with a German accent. Anderson said he asked him if he was German, and he said no, he was a Frenchman by birth. At Highbridge the man got off. Anderson said he didn't notice what became of the other man, but he thought that he got off at the same station. He thought that he got off at the same station. He thought that he two men were together. He had read of this case in the newspapers and the descriptions of the bundling up of the body had recalled to his mind the big bundle he had seen on the train. After telling this story he left the Morgue. One of the detectives there followed him out, and at the Bellevue gate suggested that he had better go down and see Capt. O'Brien and tell him about what he had seen. Anderson said he was willing, and he visited Headquarters. Up to last accounts from Headquarters he hadn't left there. He made a statement to Capt. O'Brien. He said that he was a walter and lived at 7 Bowery; that he worked when he could get work, and that he didn't have any work on Saturday and went to Rye to visit friends. He repeated the story that he had told at the Morgue and Capt. O'Brien questioned and cross-questioned him. What became of him is not known. He didn't show up at 7 Bowery last pight. At Headquarters no information would be given out about him further than that Capt. O'Brien had had an interview with a man named Anderson regarding the murder case and that no arrests had been made. To all questions Sergeant McCauley shook his head and said he would say nothing. Capt. O'Brien himself would not be seen.

O'Brien himself would not be seen.

KNEW WHERE THE HEAD WAS BURIED!

The second man taken in was arrested by the High Bridge police. His name is Henry Gardner, He is a peddler who for years has sold a metal polish around High Bridge. He began telling people early in the afternoon that he knew where the missing head was and who the murdered man was. He said that the man was peddler and that he had his badge, a piece of the oileloth used in wrapping up the body, and some of the string with which it was tier. Gardner said that he had found the head, and that he ears were gouged out and the teeth kicked in. This came to the ears of the High Bridge police, who arrested Gardner. Then Gardner denied most of his former statement. He said he knew where the murdered man's hat was, and showed a hat lining band he said he had taken from it. He didn't have the badge, oilcloth, or the string, he said, He led two policemen by a reundabout way to a point on Jerome avenue in the vicinity where the lower part of the body was found on Sunday, and pointed out an old, battered black derby. It was a 74 hat, and the lining Gardner had fitted it. He denied that he knew where the head was or anything about the murder. Gardner is 54 years old and eccentric. He sets himself up after the style of Buffalo Hill, wearing long hair and a broad-brimmed hat. He lives either at 344 West street or the St. John's Hotel, at Washington and Canai streets. The police regard his talk as of no consequence, but he was locked up as a suspicious person.

ANDERSON'S STORY BELIEVED.

Anderson's story is believed by the police, but they are not able to connect the bundle in it. KNEW WHERE THE HEAD WAS BURIED!

was locked up as a suspicious person.

Anderson's story is believed by the police, but they are not able to connect the bundle in it with the one found on Sunday morning on Undercliff avenue. The body was wrapped in manila paper when it was found, but beside it was the red olicloth, and that covered up all the paper. Furthermore, the Highbridge station of the New York and Putnam Railroad is away down the hill, and to get to the spot where the body was found, with that portion of the body, which weighed over a hundred pounds, would have been a job for three ordinary men.

The police do not take any stock in Gardner's story. If there is anything in Anderson's story, there may be some connection between it and a story told by Bernard Hainin at the Morgue earlier in the day. Haipin lives at Pelham avenue and the Southern Boulevard in Fordham. He said that on Saturday afternoon he was slitting on his plazza when a short man, who wore a light suit and a Fedora hat and who had a small mustache came along and asked the way to Washington Bridge. The general description of this man fits the description Anderson gave of his man and it was suggested that perhaps this man was then studying up the roads along which the body could be disposed of at night. The suggestion was made in good faith yesterday, but is a far-foliched one.

CLUES THAT DIDN'T PAN OUT.

The valles full of clothing which was found in the woods on Monday about two miles from where the lower part of the body was found remained in the hands of Capt. Killilea's police yesterday. The police were aimost certain that neither the satchel nor the clothing had ever belonged to the dead man.

There was another story exploited at great length yesterday about a mysterious wagon and two mysterious bundles coming across the Greenpoint ferry, which lands at Tenth street. According to the story the wagon and the bundles came over on Saturday afternoon, and the upper half of the body was found floating at Eleventh street half an hour after the ferryboat had landed her passengers. An employee of the ferry who figures in the story was quoted as saying that the man and the bundles were so very mysterious that they had attracted his attention. This man said yesterday that all he knew about the thing was shat he had seen a closed wagon on the boat, and, thinking perhaps that a couple of bors were trying to smuggle their way across inside of it, he lifted up the rear curtain and looked in. He saw a bundle inside. It didn't interest him particularly, and he didn't think more of it until he heard of the bundle being found containing the body. That was all, he said, that he knew about the matter.

MORE ALLEGED IDENTIFICATIONS.

Of the identifications of the body that were made yesterday the most promising was that of L. Zimm of 108 East Ninety-first street. Zimm called at the Morgue last evening about 9 o'clock with three other Germans and they identified the body as that of Theodore Cyklam, a missing cabinetmaker, formerly of College Point, Cyklam and the superintendent of V. Baumgarten & Co.'s cabinet works in College Point, Cyklam that the superintendent of V. Baumgarten & Co.'s cabinet works in College Point, Cyklam Tornerly lived in College Point, but moved to the upper part of New York very recently.

Zimm and the Germans with him positively identified the satchel spoken of above as one that belonged to Cyklam. They said that Cyklam bought the two school slates that were found in the satchel about a year ago when he expected to get a job as a timekeeper in a factory. Cyklam, they said, had a broken fingernal and a scar on the second or third finger of the sight hand last summer. An operation was performed to the second in the satchel about a year ago when he expected to get a job as a timekeeper in a factory. Cyklam, they said, had a broken fingernal and a scar on the second of the right hand of the dead man. Dr. Scott of Bellevue Hospital said that the scar did not seem to be large enough to be the mark of an operation. It will be examined microscopically to-day. Zimm and his companions said they would return to the Morgue this morning at 11 o'clock.

The thing that made these men sure that the bag found in the woods belonged to Cyklam were the two slates and some tacks and upholstering material. There was another thing found in the woods belonged to Cyklam were the two slates and some takes and upholstering material. tifiers every few minutes. One of the detectives said yesterday that this pleased the police very much, because it kept the young persons busy and out of their way.

On all alternate days since the finding of the body it has been stated with great positiveness that the man was a Jew and with equal positiveness that the was not. He was a Jew on Monday; yesterday the physicians who examined the body declared that this was certainly a mistake; that he was a Gentile. They said that the doctors who made the previous examination had not exercised sufficient care.

Capt. Hogan, and Detective McCormick were up at Washington Bridge yesterday, They ran across a man on Undercliff avenue who had a pack of big dogs with him. They asked him what he was up to the said he was trying to see if the dogs couldn't get the scent of the murderer. They saked him who had employed him to do this. He replied that he would announce that later. So it isn't possible to say which of the yellow journals will have a special dog report.

Mnock a Jigger Hind End First to Park Roy

Cable car 221 of the Third avenue line, with par 523 as a trailer, bounded away from its controlling spirit at 4:40 o'clock yesterday after-noon when opposite the Post Office, and ran wildly amuck into the jam of trucks and other vehicles which crowded Park row at this point. The practice of the cable gripmen is to throw open the lever on the grip to its fullest extent while shooting around the loop at the Post Office, and when they turn the curve and get on the straight track, to close it and apply brake lever. Gripman Patrick Walsh of 137 East 119th street, who is said to be a new man, was in charge of the grip of these cars. One of the little jigger cars of the Avenue I line was jogging placidly along the track half a block in front of the cable cars when they start-line was jogging placidly along the track half a block in front of the cable cars when they started from the curve. Gripman Walsh, instead of throwing back the brake lever, ranked the other one, which gripped the cable as tight as could be, and the cars went ahead as if propelled by a Brobdingnagian cannon.

A short distance from Beekman street the flying cable cars struck the little jtgger, smashing in the rear dashboard, and, lifting the car off the track, turned it completely around, so that the horses and car appeared to be going downtown instead of uptown.

A woman and two men were in the green jigger, and the whole thing happened so quickly that they could not move until the car was turned around. Then they hopped off the car with the conductor. The driver was completely surprised by the accident and stood holding the lines and gazing ahead in openmouthed wonder.

After disposing of the green jigger the flying cable cars dashed into a row of vehicles on the track in front which ordinarily would have got out of the way. The first one struck was a team of the National Express Company. The horses were thrown to one side and the pole broken. One of the borses was badly cut on the flank. Then the flying cable cars hit a truck owned by the Washington Mills Company of 74 and 76 Worth street, laden with rolls of cloth, and knocked it clean up on the sidewalk, breaking one of the wheels.

D. W. Ryan of 373 Sixteenth street, Brooklyn, a bicyclist, got caught in the middle of the ruck, but in some miraculous manner managed to get out with a whole skin, although his wheel was chewed into bits by the cable car wheels.

She started to cross the yesterday atternoon. She started to cross the avenue directly in front of the car, which was bound south. It was going too fast for Motorman Hugh Dougherty to stop it, so after shoving her several feet the car crushed her to death under the front of the fender. The wheels did not touch her. The child was dead before the car could be stopped.

The little girl's body was taken to the East 164th street station, where it lay unrecognized for five hours. It was finally identified by the girl's father. Gripman Dougherty was arrested.

REPUBLICAN ENROLLMENT.

IT WAS LARGE, BUT HOW LARGE WON'T BE KNOWN FOR A WHILE.

Many Who Unwarily Joined the Cits Pledge Themselves to Support the Republican Par-ty's Candidates Brookfield and Swayno Flock Alone and Refuse to Be Reco The general revision of the rolls of the Repub-ican organization of New York county, which s required to be made annually in the month of June, was accomplished last night between $ and 10:30 o'clock. Much interest was excited in this ordinarily perfunctory proceeding this year because of the unusual conditions The desire for a unification of the party by the obliteration of factional lines which has been expressed by President Quigg of the County Committee, and which has been met in the same spirit by hundreds of men who have maintained sort of anti-Platt organization, the Citizens' Union, with its membership com-posed largely of such Republicans who would be barred from membership in the regular Republican organization long as the union maintains its intention to nominate a third ticket, and the fact that not only were names to be taken from the rolls, but an opportunity was to be afforded generally the enrollment of new members, all tended to create this interest.

The work was conducted according to the ex-oress orders of President Quigg in most of the 1,392 election districts, and the result was in every way successful. There was a consider able falling off in the enrollment in some of the downtown and centrally located districts, where business blocks have encroached on the residential neighborhoods. In such districts idential neighborhoods. In such districts the number of names of men who had removed from the districts usually exceeded the number of those newly enrolled. The average reduction in such districts was in the neighborhood of seven to a district. In the uptown sections, however, where flats and houses have been erected by the thousand and the population has increased, there was a great increase in the enrollment.

There was evidence in some districts that a lot of deadwood had been kept on the rolls by election district leaders who were desirous of perpetuating their authority; but this condition of things was not peculiar to Platt districts. This desire to keep control of a district manifested itself in some places last night, and undoubtedly there will be some complaints for the Committee on Organization and President Quigg to pass on in this connection.

There was very little trouble last night with Citizens' Union men. Secretary Manchester of the County Committee said he had no definite knowledge regarding the result of the revision and caroliment. He was certain that there had been a substantial increase in the number of enrolled Republicans, but it will be two or three days before the returns can be tabulated and the actual result known.

President Quigg went to Washington yesterday with Senator Platt. Before going he said that he expected that there would be some trouble over the work of the election district associations last night, but that he would see to it that any wrong which might be done will be righted. If the rules laid down are not carried out the power lies with him, as President, to send enrolling officers into the election districts and conduct an absolutely new enrollment. This, he said, he certainly will do wherever enrollment was not properly conducted.

While the work of revision was in progress a small band of malcontents, numbering about twenty, all of the County Committee of the Brookfield-Swayne Republican organization, were meeting in Lyrie Hall. Gen. Wager Swayne presided, and William Brookfield was one of the twenty. They decided to do all they could to prevent their friends from leaving the Citizens Union. Mr. Brookfield explained why he did not enroll as a Republican.

"I resigned from the organization," said he, because it was fraudulent. I must first be satisfied that the organization is upon an honest basis before I apply for admission, and of that I am ignoring the enrollment. I must first be satisfied that the organization is upon an honest basis before I apply for admission, and of that I am ignoring the enrollment. I must first be satisfied that the organization is upon an honest basis before I apply for admission, and of that I am yet to be satisfied."

SHEEHAN'S FOURTH OF JULY DODGE.

It has been a hard task for John C. Sheeban to provide a programme for the Tammany Independence Day celebration which would offend either the gold Democrats, whose votes he wants for his candidate for Mayor, nor the radical Chicago platform men, who are all the while threatening to run a municipal ticket of their own. He thinks he has done the job, and the programme which has been prepared under ais direction was announced yesterday.

With the help of the Tammany Congressmen and other friends in Washington, Mr. Sheehan has managed to secure a galaxy of Democratic speakers, mostly from the West and South, none of whom was ever conspicuous in his advocacy of whom was ever conspicuous in his advocacy of all the planks in the Chicago platform, and all of whom, it is understood, have agreed to say nothing which will embarrass Mr. Sheehan's municipal campaign plans, by injecting Democratic national issues. Sandwiched in with these Southern and Western Congressmen are local orators, some of whom are gold men who were not too prominent in their opposition to the Chicago platform and candidates last fall.

Most of the talking at the celebration will be done by Congressmen J. D. Richardson of Tennessee and Henry St. George Tucker of Virginia. Congressman Richardson presided over the Chicago Convention during most of its deliberations at the request of the permanent Chairman, Senator White of California. He was not conspicuous in the campaign which followed. In fact, he had some sort of a disagreement with Senator Jones and Candidate Bryan, it is said, and left them to run the campaign to suit themselves. Congressman Tucker can tell funny stories, and he is expected to make the boys laugh and forget the Chicago platform. This is the list of short talkers:

He does, however, refer to the financial depression, and says that the country's troubles in this line are due to the gold standard.

& the Young Demo . staten laland.

A meeting of the young Democracy was held at Roe's Hall, West New Brighton, Staten Island, last evening. Mr. John K. Young pre sided. The first speaker was ex-Senator Franci M. Bixby, who said:

"Let us, in the coming campaign, fight for the election of a man for Mayor who is ca for the election of a man for Mayor who is capable of discharging the duties of the office and who is a firm believer in the principles or the Democratic party. Those principles are embedied in the Chicago platform, and the man who lives up faithfully to them is a man who lives up faithfully to them is a man whom it will be safe to trust with the welfare of all the people, You can rely upon it that such a candidate will be presented to you for your suffrage, and I firmly believe that such a candidate will be elected. If we work diligently in a righteous cause, and are loyal to our party and ourselves, we can win. The batile can never be won by consorting with traitors or by being deluded by rascals. If a man is unfaithful to his party, let him alone. If a Democratic organization falters in its faith and its duty, let it alone. The men who fought for Democracy ovaliantly last year, will fight for it more carnestly this year. That we will have many recruits to aid us, both Democratic and Republican, cannot, in the face of living facts, be disputed.

Speeches were made also by Alfred B. Cruikshank, Henry Nichols, Col. L. P. Barnes, and Clarence Ladd-Davis.

The crowd will number fully 5,000, and it may reach twice that number before to-morrow. To-night 500 men came in from Upper Sandusky to boom the candidacy of Judge Allen Smalley. Just before that 1,000 men came in from Canton and way stations to urge along the fight of the Hon. John C. Welty. Other favorite sons have brought their neighbors with them.

In addition to the silver men of the State there s a large crowd of gold men here also, representing the other wing of the Ohio Democracy. Interviews with the leaders of the gold men indicate that the fight of last year White duck and crash bicywill be renewed this year. With scarcely an exception they are all against the candidacy of John R. McLean for the Senate. They give three reasons for their antagonism. The first one is that he is not a resident the State, the second is that he has marked down to $16, $18 & $20. in the past conducted a Republican newspaper. the third is that the followers of the single standard are opposed to any millionaire for United States Senator. The gold men affirm that their strength in the State will reach 40,

United States Senator. The gold men affirm that their strength in the State will reach 40,000, and that the men who voted for Palmer and Buckner last year are still for the same cause. Within ten days after the convention has adjourned the gold men will hold a conference of their own and decide what they will do. They are willing to say now that under no circumstances will they support the McLean legislative ticket in any county or district in the State. A choice of a Democrat for Governor is at this time somewhat chaotic. A flerce onslaught was made on the candidacy of Judge Hough today, because he held office under Cleveland and was supposed to be impregnated with the financial views of the recent Administration. This has been worked from morning till night. Hough was supposed to be the choice of McLean for Governor, and on this supposition he has been opposed in every quarter. The McLean forces have strength enough to control the convention, but they are at a loss to know whether it is wise for them to ask for anything beyond the Senatorship. They have been warned that any additional demands might result in their losting what they are conceded to have now.

If Hough is nominated to morrow it will be because the McLean element thinks it is strong enough to do as it pleases. As the situation stands to-night, the field is stronger than Hough. Each silver candidate is positive that he is the very man for the place.

The candidacy of Paul Sorg is a puzzler to everybody. No ne thinks he can be elected, and yet the ex-Congressman is here and working like a beaver. The silver men are not for him, and the gold men of moderate silver views are for Hough.

The temporary and permanent Chairman of the convention to morrow will be Uric Sloane, and before the deliberations of the convention are concluded it will be far in the afternoon, and before the deliberations of the convention are concluded to morrow will be uric Sloane, and before the deliberations of the convention has a convention controlled by such a radical elem May Cost You Ten Dollars or Ten Days If You Beginning to-day Capt. Radicals of G. G. Club C Inclined to Cructive

Good Government Club C entertained one of the members of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Union at dinner at Flouret's in Fifth avenue last night. The club had sent out in itations to all the members of the committee, but only George Tombleson of the Gilders, Union showed up.

President John J. Chapman announced that the topic of the evening would be: "How does Mr. Low stand; is he running or is he not ?" The President read Mr. Low's published letter on that subject, commenting in a jocular way on each sentence. The half a dozen speakers of the evening, with the exception of Dr. E. R. L.

the evening, with the exception of Dr. E. R. L. Gould, talked of everything except Mr. Low's candidary.

Dr. Gould said he didn't think Seth Low was double-dealing, but he did think that there was a great deal of bluster at this period of the campaign.

State Senator Guy said that with a union of all anti-Tammany forces the Citizens' Union would win, but not otherwise. He said the city at present was in danger of falling into the grasp of a railroad syndicate which now controls the Democratic party.

John Brooks Leavitt said he had no objection to being called a squab, an amateur, and a kniten. He said that a proposition had been made to him that, if he joined Tammany Hall, he could have any office in the city he wanted. He declined, he said.

"We don't attack the Republican party," he said, "we attack the machine."

"They are all machines," came in a woman's voice from the hallway.

IPr. H. L. Taylor said that Seth Low was a "multiple writer;" his writings were doubtless very clear and simple to himself, but hard to be understood by others.

Mr. Leavitt made another speech:
"As we have expressed distrust of the Exerctaken upon or remain on the Mall during the progress of a concert. XV.—Any person violating the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdem-anor, and, upon conviction thereof before any City Magistrate, shall be fined not exceeding $10, and in default of payment be imprisoned not exceeding ten days, each day of imprisonment to be taken as a liquidation of $1 of the line.

Mr. Leaviti made another speech:

"As we have expressed distrust of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Union and also suspicion of Seth Low," he said, "is it wonderful that that gentleman should withdraw. We cannot expect an ancel to come down from beaven and be our candidate for Mayor. Let us have a little common sense and look at this thing seriously and act seriously."

Croker's Return.

It was said yesterday that Richard Croker, who was expected to return to New York about Sept. 1 to assume the direction of the Tammany Sept. I to assume the threather has been here-force printed in The SCN, may arrive a week earlier. A letter to a friend, it is said, announces that he will be in New York about Aug. 24.

Albert Clark, a plumber, of 726 Amsterdam evenue, who had been drinking since his family avenue, who had been drinking ago, was found went to the country a few days ago, was found dead at his home last night with a strip of cloth twisted around his neck. It is supposed that he strangled himself to death.

Your local doctor may be a good old man but you shudder when he suggests local treatment for the weakness and diseases peculiar to women. These things are generally unnecessary, but the doctor doesn't know it. He is perfectly honest, but he is behind the times. He does the best he can, no doubt, but his best is not good enough. He is not a specialist. He is a general practitioner, worried and bothered and hurried in giving attention to a thousand and one different ailments. Many busy physicians do not take the time to find out what is really the matter with their patients. Many a woman has been continuously treated for a disease she did not have, because frequently the symptoms of diseases peculiarly feminine appear to be the same as those of other disorders.

Every invalid woman may have the services of a regularly graduated, experienced and skilled specialist in the treatment of diseases of women if she will write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Over thirty years ago Dr. Pierce invented his "Favorite Prescription," for the treatment of the diseases of women. It has had a record of thirty years of success, and to-day more of it is sold by druggists than all other medicines for women combined. Its effect is immediately perceptible. It is quick to stop the dragging, bearing-down feeling and other torturing pains. It soothes inflammation, promotes regularity, and stops debilitating drains on the system.

PLASTERERS' STRIKE ENDED. clared Off Last Night at a Regular Mostin

At the regular weekly meeting of the Plain and Ornamental Operative Plasterers' Society, held last night, the question of the strike which has been in progress during the last three weeks was brought up, and the report of a comweeks was brought up, and the report of a com-mittee which had held a conference with a committee of the employers was read.

After a full discussion, it was resolved that the strike be declared off, and a further con-ference with the employers held to draw up an agreement for the avoidance of future trouble by making an agreement for the ensuing twelve months.

The Employing Plasterers' Association began The Employing Plasterers' Association began yesterday morning to put non-union men to work in place of the strikers, but upon receiving notice that another conference was to be held with representatives of the Plasterers' Society a halt was called. In the mean time the Employers and Builders' League of Harlem, which has decided to support the Employing Plasterers' Association, withdrew 500 plasterers who were at work on a number of buildings in Harlem.

The conference took place at the Building Trades Club, 117 East Twenty-third street, yesterday afternoon. The employers stated that they were willing to sign an agreement continuing the present wages and hours of labor or to listen to any well-grounded complains against foremen, but would never agree to have their foremen elected by the union. They advised the conference committee to recommend the union to think twice before precipitating an upheaval in the building trades for such a demand.

and was chiefly celebrated for his performance of Old Hoss in the farce "A Parlor Match," which Charles Hoyt wrote for Evans and Hoey, Mr. Hoey was born in New York about 45 years ago. He was first a variety actor in a team known as Bryant and Hoey, and he was successful from the outset of his career. Another popular pair of vaudeville actors at that time was Niles and Evans. These two had frequently appeared on the same programme and in 1878 the four men joined forces and appeared in various sketches written for them. Niles died of consumption and shortly afterward Bryant died in Bloomingdale Hospital, leaving only Evans and Hoey of the original four surviving.

They prepared a sketch called "The Book Agent," and in this they were successful everywhere. On this foundation Charles Hoyt wrote for them the farce "A Parlor Match," in which they played for ten years. It made them two of the most popular actors in the country, and when they dissolved partnership three years ago, both of the actors were rich. Hoey lost his fortune through unfortunate speculation. He acted for a while in a farce by the Pauttons, named the "Flams," and later tried a piece by Louis de Lange, called "The Globe Trotter." Both efforts falled, and it was not until Evans and Hoey last year revived "A Parlor Match" for one season that Mr. Hoey again enjoyed prosperity.

The woman estimated her age by the fact that she was 20 years old when the yellow fever plague broke out in Ireland, which she said was about 1812. She was born in tork and was most of her life a servant. She had been twice committed to the workheise, the first time in September, 1891, and the last time in February, 1892.
